Running Terms

Bumps

These are carried out over Lincoln Road Bridge in teams. Each team member takes a turn leading the rest of their team over the bridge at their fastest pace. No-one can pass the lead runner.

Cool down

Slower paced running, jogging or walking, plus stretching activities. This is to ensure that muscles are loosened and to help alleviate the build-up of lactic acid.

Ducks and Drakes

Small team of similar ability run behind each other in line at a steady pace. The runner at the back overtakes the whole team to become the lead runner returning to a steady pace. The process is continually repeated to ensure that each runner gets the opportunity to make short bursts of effort.

Efforts

To run as fast and as hard as you can for a set period of time or distance.

Fartlek “Speed Play”

Is Swedish, describes variable paced running, a mix of jogging/slower running/ running at a moderate pace and short fast bursts of running.

Intervals/interval training

Alternating short; fast repetitions with slow jogging (recovery) intervals.

Negative Split

Completing the second half of the race faster than the first half.

PB

Personal best time for completing a race of the same distance.

Parlauf

Pair running, two runners take turns to set the pace

Pyramids

All start at the same point and run with effort to a predetermined landmark, then steady run back to the start. Landmarks will be slightly further apart each time. At the furthest landmark runners will come back in the same way finishing with a shorter distance.

Recovery runs

Slow to moderate running to recover from hard workouts or races.
